Progressive Care Network would like to announce that it has been awarded

URAC Certification

Core accreditation

A Washington, DC- based health care accrediting organization that establishes quality standards for the health care industry. "By applying for and receiving Core Accreditation, Progressive Care Network has demonstrated a commitment to quality health care," said Alan P. Spielman, URAC president and CEO. "Quality health care is crucial to our nation's welfare and it is important to have organizations that are willing to measure themselves against national standards."

Core Accreditation Program Overview

The Core standards are the foundation of URAC accreditation. These standards address several key organizational functions that are important for any health care organization, including: organizational structure; staff qualifications; training and management; oversight of delegated activities; quality management; and consumer protection.

The Core standards must be met by all URAC-accredited entities (with the exception of Health Web Site) and serve as a prerequisite for the accreditation modules. Core Accreditation can also be obtained by companies that provide services not addressed in URAC Accreditation modules, such as pharmacy benefit management organizations, health education companies, and information technology (IT) and software firms. URAC, an independent, nonprofit organization, is a leader in promoting health care quality through accreditation and certification programs. URAC's standards keep pace with the rapid changes in the health care system, and provide a mark of distinction for health care organizations to demonstrate their commitment to quality and accountability. Through its broad-based governance structure and an inclusive standards development process, URAC ensures that all stakeholders are represented in setting meaningful standards for the health care industry.
